

What is online training like?

Students in these courses are able to take the “lecture” portion via the Internet, anytime – anywhere. The Courses are developed in WebCT with audio, video, interactive exercises, and links to other resources to supplement the text. To make these courses as accessible as possible the computer hardware requirements and user skills needed are very basic. With the click of the mouse students are able to retrieve federal regulations or work on related exercises. Students may also email their instructor with questions or carry on conversations with fellow students via a bulletin board.
